Social Entrepreneurship & Venture Philanthropy

Previous Course Code(s): FINA 5970, SBMT 6010G.
Exclusion(s): FINA 4929G

Overview

Social entrepreneurship uses business methods to address social and environmental problems, often in innovative ways. Venture philanthropy uses venture capital funding tools to promote start-up and growth of social ventures.

This course combines lectures, case studies, industry expert guest speakers and project work to involve students in social entrepreneurship and venture philanthropy with real social impact as a result. Student teams work with social enterprise partners to develop a growth plan and funding proposal for grant funding to be awarded to one of the social venture partner organizations at the end of the course. The course is MBA as well as inter-disciplinary, and open on a selective basis to non-MBA from other PG/UG programs.

Through the application of business principles and market-based funding practices, mission-driven businesses can bring transformational social and environmental benefits. Social entrepreneurship is catalytic by nature; requiring visionary and resourceful entrepreneurs to think out of the box and take calculated risks in creating new business practices, market norms and customer experiences. Venture philanthropy takes investment funding to a new, impact-driven level of accountability and results-orientation, with the ultimate aim of creating sustainable and scalable social ventures with confident and engaged stakeholders, who, without such funding and other support, would be deprived of developmental opportunities. Social entrepreneurship and venture philanthropy have been rapidly emerging around the world in recent years, not least in Hong Kong.

Materials

The course materials include:

- Mandatory and recommended materials (readings, websites and videos)
- Case studies
- Course instructor lecture notes
- Social venture partners' presentations, websites and other materials
- Guest speakers' presentations and other materials

Benefits to students

- Meet social entrepreneurs and learn about their businesses

This course is targeted at students who are interested in the growing social impact business opportunities in Hong Kong and globally.

Goals

The objective of this course is to provide students with the opportunity to analyse and help develop innovative approaches to businesses that bring benefits to society. Students will meet practitioners in social entrepreneurship and venture philanthropy. Students will also work in multi-disciplinary teams to help existing social venture organizations develop plans for growth and development, and associated funding pitches to venture philanthropists.

This is a practitioner-driven experiential learning course with a student-directed venture philanthropy fund sponsored by the Yeh Family Philanthropy, from which grant funding will be awarded to one of the social ventures that the student teams work with throughout the term. The funding decision is determined by scoring from a judging panel, which includes independent experts as well as the students taking this course, during a Funding Committee Meeting organized at the end of the course when student teams pitch on behalf of their social venture partner organizations.

Expectations

This is an action-based experimental-learning course that approaches social entrepreneurship from a practical work / study and social enterprise/ venture philanthropy perspective. Students should be prepared to apply their skills and knowledge through practical problem solving, working with real social enterprises to help them develop growth plans and associated funding proposals. There will be no exams; instead, students will be graded on their class participation, individual due diligence reports, individual participation in team-work, and the quality of the team deliverables.

Technical skills development, such as “how to make financial projections” will not be covered in depth during the course. Those who are already working in the social innovation space and want to further their career through this course may find that they know some of the materials already. Do not expect to be equipped with the full knowledge, skills and tools to run and/or to fund a social enterprise at the end of the course; this is a continuous learning experience. The course aims to provide an overview of the social entrepreneurship and venture philanthropy ecosystem, globally and locally for Hong Kong, illustrate the challenges and opportunities for social enterprises with case studies and guest speakers, provide practical work experience, network opportunities, and open doors for further opportunities in this field.

Format

- Learn about venture philanthropy and expand funding networks
- Action-based experimental learning through project work with social venture partner organizations
- Multi-disciplinary team work
- Career opportunities

Students will request priority selection for their social venture partner organization the first week of the course, be allocated into teams by the course instructor, and then work with their social venture partners on growth plans and funding proposal projects in parallel with class sessions. Separate group meetings between students and the social venture partner organizations should be arranged to advance project work, in addition to the class sessions. Tutorials will be incorporated into the class sessions to help ensure that team project work proceeds smoothly.

At the end of the course, the funding proposal deemed to have most merit will be awarded HKD 250,000 from the student-directed venture philanthropy fund which is sponsored by the Yeh Family Philanthropy foundation. The grant should be used to grow and develop the social venture as per the plan developed in partnership with the student team. It is the social venture partner who will receive the grant, not the students, but the students may wish to continue to work with their partners to help implement their growth plan.

Funded social enterprises from previous terms will be invited to share their experiences in working successfully with previous students and in implementing their business plans proposed by the winning student teams.

The funding decision is subject to assessment by the Funding Committee on May 8th. Details about the funding assessment can be found in Appendix A.

Following the Funding Committee meeting, the winning student team will work with the funded social enterprise to fine-tune and further develop the funding proposal implementation plan. Other teams will continue working with their social venture partners to develop alternative funding plans. Continuous engagement is expected from all students until the end of the course.

Students request priority for which social venture partner organization that they will work with during this course from a list of four or more partner organizations selected by the Yeh Family Philanthropy, which provides the grant, and the course instructor.

Funding assessment guidelines for Funding Committee Meeting

Date: May 8th 2019

Objective

These funding assessment guidelines provide the details of the funding assessment criteria, and the content that should be included for each judging input for the participating social enterprises at the funding committee meeting.
